Nan Patterson again becomes Mrs. Martin, having remarried her former husband. Exit Nan.

Florida has no cotton mills, yet the state produces as fine cotton as can be raised the world over.

Dispatches from Berlin announce that cholera is extending. There had been 60 deaths and 183 cases.

The population of Gainesville is rapidly growing and there is no doubt that it will reach 7,000 by the opening of spring.

When The Atlanta Constitution is on political slush they fill up the page with a double column ad on "our guaranteed circulation."

Because a young lady was "half burned" at one time and "half scared to death" at another time, it is no sign of death. It might have been the other half in each instance.

There is not much difference in mobs world over. In Russia they murder Jews, in Japan they burn churches and murder Christians, while in this country they go for the man who has committed some crime.

The recent revelations in regard to big insurance companies giving money to the Republican campaign and, as the Democratic presidential nominee alleged, proves the old assertion that "you can't fool old Parker."

The W. C. T. U. of Atlanta presented the city with a drinking fountain Sunday. The city attorney accepted it on behalf of the municipality, as he is undoubtedly better acquainted with that kind of thirst quencher than the mayor.

Those papers that have been making much of the Pardoning Board and Governor's delay, etc., will soon have the matter settled. The Young Men's Democratic League of Jacksonville will be all in debate. The subject of the will be: "Resolved, That the exercise of justice have been perverted by the liberal exercise of the pardoning power in the State of Florida."

Man thinks he loves his wife and her and because he works hard for their support he needs no other love than that he loves them. Perhaps not, but when he constantly reminds them of the expense they are to him and seems to begrudge every dollar to maintain the home and support the family, he spoils the happiness of his family circle by selfish thought.

Public schools of Gainesville will attract the attention of all who read the smaller towns of the county who have boys and girls whom they desire to fit for higher education. Course of study enables graduates of the Graded and High School to the University and State Female Normal on their diplomas without further examination. And it will no doubt be strange that they can enter colleges in the same manner.

Some of the schools will be in exchange and the expense of sending pupils to the school will be paid as regards board and other

AN IMPORTANT NOTICE.

Business men of the county, manufacturers, and all who are engaged in any way in any enterprise that they desire to have come before the people of the State, should secure space in the columns of the Industrial Edition of The Gainesville Daily Sun, which will print a very attractive edition of 20,000 copies, to be distributed at the State Midwinter Fair at Tampa, November 15th to 30th, with the exception of a few hundred copies that will be retained here for our local patrons.

This edition will set forth the advantages of Alachua county in every detail, showing up her resources, and will be an excellent medium in which owners of land over the county can place their advertisements to bring them before those who are looking for a place to settle.

The city of Gainesville will also be prominently mentioned in this edition, and there will be printed many fine illustrations of its beautiful homes, public buildings and the natural beauty of the city and surrounding country. It is the intention of the publisher to have an illustration of the State University buildings, if the plans can be secured in time.

Every city and hamlet in the county should make an effort to see that their interests are represented. Every professional man in the county should have his name and profession in this edition, which will be a county directory of the business and professional men.

The space reserved for advertising will be limited and those wishing to take advantage of this excellent opportunity should address H. H. McCreary, Publisher, Gainesville, Fla.

CORN IN FLORIDA.

Florida does not cut much of a figure as a corn-growing State, but there is good reason for much of the poor corn yield in various sections. The fault lies with the tiller of the soil, as well as the soil itself, in many instances, as corn should have considerable care. And, too, the land should have some sort of fertilizer. In the corn belt of the West the soil is black with the natural fertilizer that accumulated before it was ever touched with the plow.

The corn crop of Florida in many instances is not regarded by farmers as worthy of much attention. A farmer, when asked in regard to planting corn, said: "Oh, I plant corn any old time and don't expect a very big crop." In the North the hot season, with plenty of rain, makes the corn grow, and the land is also supplied with good barnyard manure. It is also cultivated twice as much as in this State, the soil being kept well stirred up.

In speaking of raising corn in this State, The Florida Agriculturist says that there should be a general abandonment of the very tall varieties that furnish more growth of stalk than grain. As the stalks are seldom used in this State, a low-growing variety would be more profitable, as it would leave more of the elements of fertility contained in the soil for the formation of the grain. Every corn grower should try new kinds of corn until he finds one suited to his circumstances and conditions. Having found it, he should begin at once to improve it by selection until it is just what he needs. It has been done elsewhere and can be done here.

IMMIGRATION.

The formal call for a conference of Southern representatives to meet in Chattanooga, in November, for the purpose of making an effort to secure desirable immigrants for the South, has been issued.

The object of the meeting should be of interest to all who are desirous of advancing the South, and while there is room for many thousands to build them good homes and lay aside money for future use, the space should be limited for the worthless class that are pouring into this country from foreign prisons. They are wholly undesirable, and it would be impossible to have them affiliate with our institutions.

The Sun has advocated the urging of Germans, Dutch, Swedes and Danes to locate on farms in Florida, where they can carry on gardening and other branches for which they are adapted, and as these people are sure to become citizens, remain here and raise large families, they are most preferred, as they are in most cases noted for their integrity and industrious habits. They seldom create discord, and their children grow up to become good American citizens.

The men at the head of this movement are what is needed to make it a success, as they comprise the governnors of several States, congressmen, senators, railroad and newspaper men, besides others engaged in pursuits that desire the development of the country to be in good hands.

At this meeting a system of quarantine will be introduced and discussed that it is hoped will put a check on the dumping of every class of foreign rubbish on our shores.

THE PINDAR CROP.

The government statisticians have just issued a very interesting document on the ground-pea or pindar, called by the United States report the "peanut." It does not matter about the name, however, so long as we are made aware of the good qualities of this growing product. It is sold over the land in large quantities, taking the place of salted almonds in many instances, used between the acts at theaters and between heats at races, and is said to be the only article that will effectually take away a whiskey breath and leave a very pleasant nutty aroma. A five-cent sack of roasted pindars will save a large amount of explanations when eaten just before going home late at night, as they absorb the alcohol in the stomach and send a man home in a sober state.

The peanut vines are also good for a fodder crop, and are grown for that purpose as well. At the time the last census was taken there were 203,946 acres devoted to the culture of peanuts, and the data shows that the crop is steadily growing in popularity. If the vines are desired for hay, the government statistician sagely remarks, they should be hung on poles until thoroughly cured, after which they may be hauled to the barn. Peanut hay is worth $10 a ton, and the crop should be from one to three tons to the acre—not counting the value of the nuts themselves. On the whole, the government statisticians are inclined to wax enthusiastic about the possibilities of the succulent goober, both as a food for man and beast, and they likewise point out that there exists one or two communities which import peanuts from the South and export olive oil to all the world, which suggests that there are even greater possibilities in the goober than the South, which raises it, had suspected.

CORRUPTION FUND.

Some of the old-time Democrats who have policies in the New York Life Insurance Company will be pleased to learn that this company dropped $48,000 into the last Republican National campaign fund, and no one knows how many more before that. The trust companies are also in league with the said insurance companies, so by voting the Republican ticket you aid the concerns that combine to freeze out the legitimate business enterprises of the country.

The money used by the Republican party to buy votes is thus taken from all classes and it is a method of blackmail on the part of the party, and theft on the part of the insurance company that the law has not been able to reach so far.

Yet people will put their faith in the party that is constantly putting the screws tighter on them, maintaining in power men who have not the slightest regard for their condition.

THE RIGHT SORT.

Occasionally the publisher meets with a word of encouragement that has a tendency to cheer him on his way more than a check for a thousand from some disgruntled kicker who pays under protest. The following letter tells the story very plainly and honestly:

"CADILLAC, FLA., Sept. 12.

"Editor Sun: Dear Sir—I received your letter asking me if I desired the paper continued. Yes, please send it. I cannot possibly do without it in my house. I believe I would work one month for a dollar before I would be without The Sun.

"Yours truly,

"SILAS DAVIS"

Mr. Davis is the right sort of a man, and we hope he may never be obliged to do as he offers to, but may live many years to enjoy The Sun-shine in his house.

Blind tigers are no respecters of communities, and as they are probably led, owing to their affliction, are sometimes found in the jungles that have a license law. A few days ago one of these carnivora was found in Ybor City, and when cornered by the officers tried to escape punishment by offering the minions of the law a bribe. Tigers are no respecters of localities. They lurk where they can find anything to prey upon.
